31 after reportedly being stabbed in her face and neck by her husband, Jorge Mejia, whom she met on a Utah-based dating app.

According to the show's representative, Martson has been released from the hospital and is "doing well." (Mejia has not responded to our requests for comment.) The stabbing took place during their honeymoon in Costa Rica, and the heartbreak all started because Martson was infatuated with someone else on the trip. "She was very much in love with someone she met on Tinder during their Costa Rica honeymoon," show rep Laura Whitaker previously told In Touch. "We're hearing Jorge's side of the story, but Ashley's side is that this was planned and orchestrated." Update — Jan. 27: According to a statement from the county medical examiner, the cause of death for Martson is not considered criminal, but they did note that "there was trauma to multiple areas of the body, including the lungs, liver, heart, skull, neck, shoulders and extremities.” The medical examiner was unable to determine the exact cause of death. The statement was confirmed by Martson’s publicist.Q:

Laravel Eloquent ORM

findByColumn function I have a table (users) with an ID column and I need to select all rows where the ID is equal to a value that is passed in to the function. This is my query:

$user = User::findByColumn('id', $id);

If I run this in PHP it works fine, as it should, but when I do the same thing using an Eloquent ORM, it throws an error that states:

Method [findByColumn] does not exist. Is there some way of using this function without having to write my own validation? The function I need to use is in the model, User
